

I have not had the banks calling but I have had these home mortgage companies calling all the time. The mortgage companies are the one who have made it bad for everyone else. My question is why don't they have to follow the strict rules to the "No Call List" as everyone else does or should? I do not want the banks to be able to start calling either.

My opinion of the no call list is too lax. When I have made a complaint to the FCC they state there has to be so many calls before they do anything.... that is a joke in it's self!
